Public Engagement Strategy Design Worksheet

This worksheet is the first step in developing your Public Engagement Strategy and will form the foundation of your engagement efforts. It will help you identify any involved departments, roles for specific individuals throughout the project, identify who the decision-makers are in the project, what level of influence the Public may have in this project, internal and external engagement expectations, predict approximate level of community interest, what level of public engagement is recommended, and which potential stakeholders should be contacted. Complete as much of the following information as you can. Only fill out the parts that are relevant to your project. Some of the worksheet pages are adapted from © International Association for Public Participation, iap2.org.

Review Average Scores from the Expectations Worksheets

The results from the expectations worksheets give a general sense of the level of public participation that should be recommended to the decision maker. By no means should these worksheets be considered scientific, but they should offer a reasonable recommendation.

Depending on the project, a minimum level of public participation may be prescribed by regulation. In this case, the worksheet may be useful in determining whether the required level is sufficient or if another level on the IAP2 Spectrum© should be considered.

If any questions were registered at the "Very Low" level, careful evaluation should be given to the level of public participation, even if the average score was otherwise low. The minimum level of engagement for every project should at least be Inform.

Summarize the Expectation Assessments

The Spectrum level expectations summary matrix below provides a visual summary of the expectations assessments. Plot the level as it was assessed for each of the key participants. Based on the plotting, what level of the IAP2 Spectrum© will you recommend?

Expectations of the Key Participants	Inform	Consult	Involve	Collaborate	Empower
1. What level is appropriate based on internal expectations?					X
2. What level is appropriate based on external expectations?		X
3. What level is recommended by the Community Engagement Coordinator? (Optional)

LEVEL OF COMMUNITY INTEREST

Some projects may be of great interest and/or importance to the community at large. This may include residents, employees, the business community, nonprofits, schools, etc. Some projects may be more controversial or have interest beyond just the City of Kansas City, MO (e.g. regional or state interest). Think about the type of comments and input you expect to get from various stakeholders. Answer these questions and be ready to incorporate these considerations into your engagement strategy.

What decision is being made? Has a decision already been made?

The facility has been used for homeless services in the neighborhood since 2021 and the previous agency and CBB have had ongoing engagement with the community. It is important to remember that no one level or method of engagement is inherently better than another, as long as they are implemented according to the public's needs. Remember, there is no one "right" way to engage. Throughout the course of your project, you may encounter stakeholders who have different engagement needs. It is okay if you need to adjust your engagement strategy throughout your project, just be sure to document what changes were made and why.
