Recommendations from UC/UC Davis Research

- Fund CVI work in a capacity that is commensurate with the magnitude of the issue relative to Kansas City and establish an Office of Violence Prevention staffed by subject matter experts and public health professionals.
 - Funding CVI work equitably and sustainably will stabilize the workforce and reduce the high staff turnover rates, while stabilizing the workforce creates more opportunity for professional development investments in staff.
- Prioritize and fund CM and trauma recovery worker wellness.
 - Burnout and secondary trauma were reported by both CVI workers and trauma recovery specialists. Organizations must integrate worker wellness into all aspects of their operations: time management plans, crisis response protocols, bereavement leave, paid time off, rotating crisis phone responsibilities, etc.
