WHEREAS, the second Monday of October is currently a federal holiday commemorating Christopher Columbus, glorifying a man whose genocidal acts against Indigenous People are well-documented, whitewashing history and promoting inaccurate narratives; and

WHEREAS, the City of Kansas City, located in the State of Missouri, is named after the Missouria (Nutachi) tribe; and

WHEREAS, the City of Kansas City is located in Jackson County, which is named after Andrew Jackson, the seventh president of the United States who was a Tennessee slave owner and the leading proponent of the Indian Removal Act of 1830, which caused the forced relocation, death and suffering of thousands of Indigenous People; and

WHEREAS, original and displaced tribes inhabiting the State of Missouri, were systematically removed from the State of Missouri; and

WHEREAS, the City of Kansas City acknowledges the history of dispossession and violence against Indigenous People and has committed to addressing systemic inequity and structural racism and being an inclusive city; and

WHEREAS, since 1971, Kansas City Indian Center has served as Kansas City's only multi-purpose social service agency for the American Indian population, providing social service supports, preservation of and connection to Indigenous identity, and has greatly contributed to the diversity of the Kansas City community; NOW, THEREFORE,
